A message from the Farmer

Farming is one of the most challenging endeavors one will ever embark on. The Spirit Mountain journey over the last 20 years has taught us how important the land is and how few people really understand the delicate balance of living in harmony with nature. Our family's vision for Spirit Mountain, from day one was always that this farm would be a blessing to all who set foot on it. We've hosted thousands of visitors over the decades and this act of sharing our most favorite place with our friends is what brings us maximum joy.

The plantation manager, Delvie Aquino was born and raised next door to this coffee farm. Delvie grew up working the land, picking coffee and learning all sorts of valuable lessons. The partnership that has grown between Delvie and Chad over these past two decades has been a highlight of our journey.

Chad is at his best when he's bringing people together. Whether that's through hosting a group of friends up at the farm or developing an out-of-the-box concept for a client. He keeps a constant focus on helping others flourish in community. As an architect with decades of experience in the Design / Build world, Chad has the exceptional ability to balance beauty with functionality.

Simplicity and the mantra "less is more" drives Chad's design process to leverage the natural beauty often surrounding a project. Chad has designed and built several dream homes for he and his family, each one having more windows and fewer walls than the previous, big enough for friends & family, yet small enough to keep people close. Their current favorite is their 480 SF "off the grid" tree house on the coffee farm!
